FIRST HUNDRED YEARS

The year 1879 was one marked in Little Rock by gradual resolution of the turmoil which accompanied reconstruction following the Civil War. It was also the year that saw the birth of formal medical education in the state of Arkansas.

Under a charter of the Arkansas Industrial University in Fayetteville, an enterprising group of physicians, led by P. O. Hooper, moved to establish a medical branch in Little Rock. The Sperindio Hotel on W. 2nd St. was purchased in August, and on October 7, 1879 Hooper and the other seven co-founders opened the doors of the state's first medical school. Off to a meager start with only twenty-three students, the school produced it's first graduate, Tom M. Pinson, in March of 1880.

Lacking any requirements for admission until 1885, the school proved to be a financial success for it's founders but public sentiment in the largely rural, poorly educated state may have been best expressed in an 1882 House of Representatives' resolution, ". . . that medicine and surgery are humbugs, and that all medical colleges should be declared nuisances and injurious to the health of the Commonwealth." Despite such sentiments, 109 graduates were produced in the first ten years and by 1890 the great demand for medical education forced construction of a new $15,000, steam heated facility at 2nd and Sherman.

Early medical training was largely didactic with formal clinical training at a minimum until the opening of the Logan H. Roots Memorial Hospital in 1898, and St. Vincent Infirmary in 1900. In addition, Isaac Folsom of Lonoke Co. endowed the school with a gift of $20,000 upon his death in September, 1892, to be used to establish a clinic bearing his name.

With this apparently secure foundation, the newly renamed University of Arkansas Medical Department entered the twentieth century with seeming complacency. That was soon to change however, with the formation of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in July of 1906. Competition between the two schools prompted the Medical Department to upgrade the laboratory facilities and faculty, extend the academic year to eight months, and finally, in 1910, require a high school diploma for admission. Given the fact that in 1899 there were only 6 four year public high schools in the entire state, it is understandable that the enrollment fell sharply. With a loss of tuition revenues, and the implementation of costly improvements, it became painfully apparent that additional funding must be found.

In 1910, the Flexner Report was issued by the Carnegie Foundation which showed that over half of all U.S. medical schools, including both Little Rock schools, were below acceptable standards. The editorial outcry which followed, increased the impetus for merger of the two schools, and on July 5, 1911, after much legislative debate, the University of Arkansas Board of Trustees officially assumed direction of the Medical Department. Despite this adoption by the state, the conditions in the school remained essentially unchanged. As a result, in March, 1912, the senior students made headlines in the Arkansas Gazette by presenting a list of grievances accusing the school of poor facilities and inadequate education. The furor that followed led to the resignation of Dean Thomas H. Lenow, and his replacement by Dr. Morgan Smith.

In an effort to improve the situation, Dean Smith obtained permission to move pre-clinical instruction to the old State Capitol Building on W. Markham thus making the 2nd and Sherman site available for clinical training. Full time pre-clinical faculty was hired, the curriculum was upgraded, and admission requirements were increased in an effort to raise the quality of the institution. With these increased standards came a drastic decrease in enrollment at a time when increased operating costs were causing dire financial problems for the school.

The lack of available clinical training had become particularly acute thus prompting Dean Smith to appeal to the legislature for funds to build a state operated charity teaching hospital. On February 8, 1917, such a bill was approved, but with the U.S.'s involvement in World War I came a virtual standstill in the growth of the school. With the school in shambles after the war, and no hope for additional clinical facilities, Dean Smith was forced to suspend clinical training in 1919. This drastic measure diverted needed funds for pre-clinical education but forced third and fourth year medical students to complete their education elsewhere.

Clinical education was re-instituted in 1922 with the availability of St. Vincent Infirmary, St. Luke's and Baptist Hospital as training centers. With it came increased enrollment and school spirit as reflected by organization of a school band, and publication of the Caduceus in 1924. Dean Smith continued to struggle for funding but legislative sentiment was not with medical education and in May 1927 he resigned.

With the depression of 1929 and the Medical Department's unpopular stand in favor of teaching the theory of evolution, Smith's successor, Dr. Frank Vinsonhaler, faced the impossible task of obtaining money from a hostile legislature. Instead, he and the U. of A. in Fayetteville turned to F.D.R.'s Public Works Administration and in 1934 the Medical Department received $500,000 for construction of a new Medical School education building. The Bentley Estate adjacent to the City Hospital at 12th and McAlmont was purchased, and by November of 1934 construction had begun.

The completion of the new building, great increases in student enrollment, and the addition of such outstanding professors as W. C. Langston, and D. A. Rhinehart to the faculty, prompted the administration to apply to the A.M.A. Council on Medical Education for full accreditation. Despite the improvements, the application was rejected in 1936 and because of a persistent shortage of available charity hospital beds, the A.M.A. dropped the Medical Department from its list of approved medical schools in 1939. Although the decision was later repealed, the school was placed on probation until 1944.

The public and legislative outrage that followed, prompted a faculty and administrative reorganization, and eventually led to a contract with City Hospital to increase available hospital beds. The quality of the faculty was increased with a subsequent boom in pre-clinical research, and the admission of the school's first graduate students in 1943. In addition to increased admission and academic standards, students faced an accelerated curriculum, and R.O.T.C. training when the education of physicians became a national priority after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

With the end of the war came increased student enrollment, and unprecedented expansion of clinical faculty. It became apparent also that the old City Hospital would be inadequate to meet the clinical training needs of the future. Sponsored by Gov. Ben T. Laney, the "Laney Plan" to move the medical school to a new site on the grounds of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases was formally adopted in September of 1947. Given the impressive improvements in facilities, academics, and faculty, it is not surprising that full accreditation was granted by the A.M.A. in 1958.

Growth followed growth on the new campus

To house the students near the isolated west Little Rock location, dormitory and student union facilities were completed in 1959. The building, completed with federal funds, was named in honor of Dr. Jeff Banks, Professor of Anatomy, whose untimely death had earlier shocked the campus. With a gift of $600,000 from Col. and Mrs. T. H. Barton and various other contributions, the school applied for and received federal matching funds for construction of a medical research facility. By November of 1961 the T. H. Barton Institute for Medical Research was ready to add to an already dynamic research program.

Because of the school's stand during the integration crisis at Little Rock in 1957 and the Act 10 controversy which followed, the Medical Center faced considerable hostility in the legislature during the late 50's. In order to help solve some of the school's financial problems, Storm Whaley was appointed Vice President for Health Sciences. A masterful administrator, Mr. Whaley worked tirelessly to solve the financial woes of the campus. Unfortunately, administrative frictions developed which resulted in the departure of the Dean of the College of Medicine, F. Douglas Lawrason.

Lawrason's successor as Dean, Dr. Winston K. Shorey, was a man perfectly suited to the task facing him. Dr. Shorey, an open minded, even tempered, decisive gentleman, moved quickly to secure the badly needed support of the legislature, the state medical profession, and the general public. This combined support helped to make Dr. Shorey's tenure as Dean a decade and a half of impressive growth and achievement.

The 1960's saw a doubling of full-time and voluntary faculty despire the departure of Dr. Richard Ebert and the deaths of Drs. Masaki Hara, Willis Brown and Ted Panos. Research activity accelerated dramatically, enrollment rose, and post-graduate training opportunities nearly doubled. In addition, the Child Study Center was completed in 1969 to assist children whose school and home adjustment was impaired because of minimal brain dysfunction, inner conflict, or emotional problems.

With a new decade came important changes in campus leadership. In the Spring of 1970, Vice President Storm Whaley resigned to accept a position with the N.I.H. and was succeeded by Dr. James L. Dennis as Vice President for Health Sciences.

When Dr. Dennis took office, he was faced with the problem of severe health care deficits in many of Arkansas' rural communities. With his concept of a "University Without Walls", he tried to make the campus more responsive to the health care needs of the state. In addition to increasing enrollment in all the health related colleges, his efforts to increase Family Practice residency training programs, and creation of the Area Health Education Centers have helped bridge the medical campus and the rural communities where health care needs are so acute.

In an effort to fuse the Medical Center into an organized, united campus, Dr. Dennis proposed an administrative reorganization of the newly renamed University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences with his assumption of the position of Chancellor. The plan called for the creation of four autonomous colleges under the supervision of the Chancellor, and in 1975 it was adopted by the Board of Trustees.

The following year, Dean Winston Shorey retired after 13 years as Dean of the College of Medicine, and assumed the directorship of the AHEC program until his untimely death in January of 1976. His successor, Dr. Thomas A. Bruce took office in the summer of 1974 and has in the five years since then contributed to faculty expansion, increased student enrollment, and efforts to afford more student and faculty input into the governance system of the campus.

With the increasing enrollment in all the colleges came a need for even more educational facilities on the campus. Begun in the fall of 1974, Education Building Two was completed in September of 1977. To upgrade clinic facilities, a new ambulatory teaching center will be opened by Summer 1979. Combined with renovation of University Hospital and construction of a new administrative wing, all these projects have given the campus a truly contemporary appearance, and a firm foundation on which medical education in the state of Arkansas can enter its second century of achievement.

THE SYSTEM

The University of Arkansas first became involved in the training of health professionals in 1879, when the Medical Department of Arkansas Industrial University was formed. Since its beginnings as a school for training only doctors, it has grown into a multifaceted academic center educating physicians, nurses, pharmacists, and the many support personnel needed for today's health care.

Located on 26 acres in west Little Rock, the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences serves as the center of medical education in the state of Arkansas. With a combined enrollment of nearly 1500 students, the Colleges of Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, Health Related Professions and the Graduate Division share the educational, clinical, and research facilities on the campus.

Although University Hospital and its outpatient clinics remain the primary clinical facilities for all UAMS students, the more than 300 interns and residents now work state-wide, through cooperative agreements with other hospitals in metropolitan Little Rock and six regional Area Health Education Centers in other parts of the state.

INTRODUCTION

An Area Health Education Center (AHEC) Program for the State of Arkansas was originally proposed in January, 1973, by the Governor's Committee on Primary Health Care as one of six major components of a State Plan for Primary Health Care. The proposed AHEC plan was subsequently adopted, authorized and funded by the State Legislature in February, 1973. The program was assigned legislatively to the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences and the responsibility for the program was delegated specifically to the Vice-Chancellor for Health Sciences.

As originally conceived, the AHEC Program was to focus principally on the state's primary health care needs, particularly in the medically underserved areas. The program was to include efforts to retain more of the graduates of the state's College of Medicine for practice in Arkansas; the training of more primary care physicians, particularly family practitioners, for the state; and to improve the geographic distribution of these physicians over the state. The program was also to address the needs of the medically underserved areas of the state for other healthcare professionals and disciplines, including nurses, clinical nurse practitioners, physicians' assistants, and other personnel needed for improved primary health care. The plan called for the demonstration of the team approach to the delivery of primary health care services, and the utilization of this in the training of the various health and health related professions students. It was envisioned that there would eventually be six Area Health Education Centers over the state and that each would attempt to recruit and provide a portion of the training of individuals from within the area, who would ultimately return to their home communities for careers in the practice of primary health care.

Area Health Education Centers

AHEC Fayetteville

The Northwest Arkansas AHEC at Fayetteville was established in November, 1974, with the appointment of Lee B. Parker, Jr., M.D. as AHEC Director. In February, 1975, James K. Patrick, M.D., was appointed Director of the Family Practice Residency Program which is based in the AHEC at Fayetteville. This program, which began in July of 1975, incorporates the facilities of Washington Regional Medical Center, Fayetteville V.A. Hospital, Fayetteville City Hospital, and Springdale Memorial Hospital. Cumulatively, these hospitals represent a total of 692 beds with an average census of 559, and 82 physicians who serve on the staff of the program.

AHEC Texarkana

The Area Health Education Center—Southwest was established at Texarkana, Ark. on August 1, 1975 with the appointment of James B. Kittrell, M.D. as Director. The AHEC-Texarkana headquarters is located in facilities provided by St. Michael Hospital, Texarkana, Ark. The facilities of this hospital, as well as those of Wadley Hospital in Texarkana, Texas, are utilized for the AHEC educational program. Since July of 1976, elective clerkships have been offered to senior medical students at AHEC-Texarkana, with future plans including development of a Family Practice Residency Program.

AHEC Jonesboro

The Jonesboro AHEC, established in December 1974, and directed by Robert S. Cohen, M.D., offers elective programs for senior medical students in almost 20 specialty fields. The facilities in Jonesboro include St. Bernard's Hospital, a 240 bed general hospital, and Craighead County Memorial Hospital, which are served by 62 physicians. The trade area of over 300,000 persons also benefits from a mental health center which has both in and out-patient services.

AHEC Fort Smith

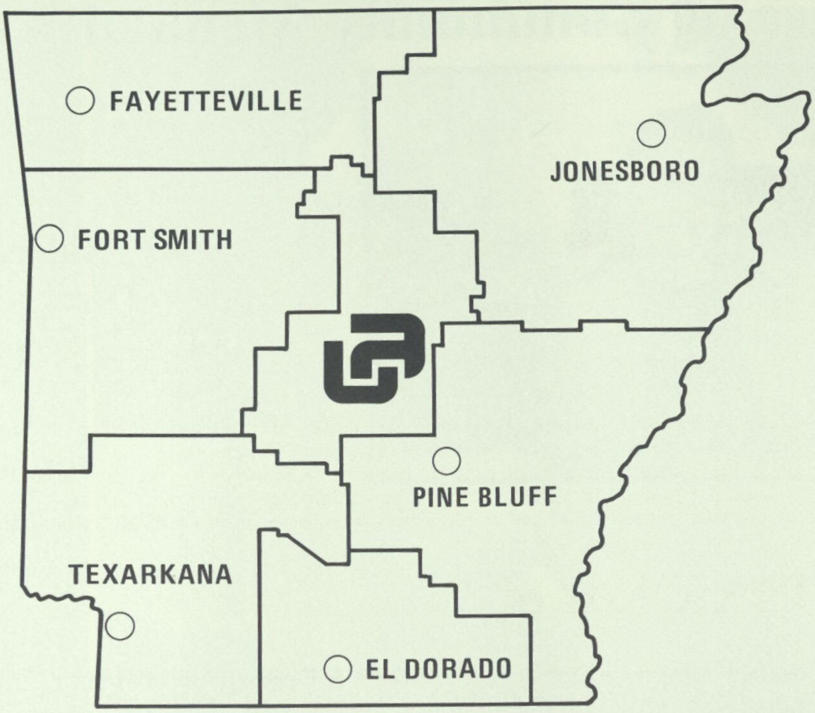
The Fort Smith AHEC, under the directorship of John R. Williams, M.D., provides electives in most of the major specialty and subspecialty areas. The excellence of this experience is due to the quality of the medical community, some 165 in number. Sparks Regional Medical Center, which is currently expanding to 681 beds, and St. Edward Mercy Center, which has recently increased its capacity to 339 beds, demonstrate the progressive nature of the area. The Family Practice Residency Program, under the leadership of Dr. David Busby, is now in its fourth year with 14 residents, six second-year and eight first-year.

AHEC Pine Bluff

AHEC-Pine Bluff was established in September 1973, and since April 1974, has had successful clinical rotations for UAMSC medical students and internal medicine residents. Donald L. Miller, M.D., is director, with offices located in Jefferson Hospital. The hospital is a 315 bed facility, with a medical staff 83 physicians. Medical and audiovisual libraries are located in Jefferson Hospital and staffed by UAMSC trained librarians. The AHEC-Pine Bluff Family Practice Residency Program, directed by James A. Lindsey, M.D., first accepted residents in July of 1977, and now has four, one second-year and three first-year. The Medical Social Work Education Program is directed by Carolyn N. Sanders, ACSW, and offers one year of field training for graduate social work students in conjunction with UALR.

AHEC El Dorado

Established in November of 1973, the El Dorado AHEC program affords participating students and residents the opportunity to observe and participate in the health sciences as practiced in rural and suburban communities of South Arkansas. Currently, emphasis is being placed on electives for senior medical students and nurse practitioner students, preceptorship programs for junior medical students, and continuing education for physicians and nurses. Jacob P. Ellis, M.D., is the director of this AHEC whose future plans include the development of a Family Practice Training Program.



FAMILY PRACTICE RESIDENCY

Fully accredited three-year training programs in Family Practice were begun at AHEC-Fort Smth and AHEC-Fayetteville/Springdale in July, 1975, and at AHEC-Pine Bluff in July, 1977. Each of these training programs has a Director and a complete College of Medicine appointed teaching faculty in all the major medical specialties and subspecialties from the local practicing community, and are affiliated with the local private hospital(s) in the community.

The overall goal of the residency program is to teach future family practitioners to become skilled, competent physicians concerned about the total patient, his family, and community. Another important goal of the program is to achieve a better distribution of primary care physicians throughout the state, but especially for practice in less populated areas of Arkansas.

In order to achieve these goals the residency training programs emphasize instruction in internal medicine, pediatrics, obstetrics-gynecology, surgery, emergency room, behavioral science and psychiatry, with additional experience in a variety of subspecialties. Also, each program has a fully staffed and equipped model Family Practice Center which is the focus of activity for outpatient training during the three year program.

Each of the AHEC Family Practice Residency Programs has received federal training grant awards to expand their programs. The grants were effective July 1, 1977, and each is assured for a period of three years, with provision for renewal upon successful application for a period of two additional years. As a result of these federal grants, during the next four years the three AHEC Family Practice Residency Programs will be able to more than double the total number of residents completing the three years of family practice training. Similar residency programs are being planned for the AHECs at El Dorado, Jonesboro and Texarkana.

During the present academic year, 1978-79, a total of 31 family practice residents are in full-time training. Sixteen in the first year, 11 in the second, and 3 in the third year.

FUTURE DIRECTIONS

Progress toward providing clinical training for students of the other health professions and allied health disciplines has been very limited to date. Early in 1978, preliminary discussions began with representatives of the College of Nursing and the College of Pharmacy, which have now led to the planning of formal programs of clinical training for these students in the AHECs. Tentative plans include the provision of opportunities in the AHECs for teaching and training of these students in the delivery of ongoing, first level care, utilizing a multidisciplinary team or group practice relating to a state system of regionalized secondary and centralized tertiary medical care.

Additional expansions of the AHEC program include the establishment of: 1) Family Practice Residency Programs in El Dorado, Jonesboro, and Texarkana AHECs; 2) sub-area or SAHEC centers; 3) outlying satellite clinics; 4) health education programs for the public; and 5) increased AHEC involvement in regionalized continuing education programs for physicians and other health professionals.

SAHEC centers would be strategically located over the state in intermediate sized communities in order to provide another level of clinical experience and training for health profession students and primary care residents. Each would relate to and be a part of one of the six AHECs.

The satellite clinics would be established in small, isolated, rural communities, to be staffed by clinical nurse practitioners or physician assistants and other appropriate ancillary personnel. The satellite centers would relate closely to the AHEC or SAHEC in which each was located and would become model programs of front line rural health care and education, and would serve as training sites for health profession students particularly future primary care practitioners. The purpose would not necessarily be to encourage physicians or others to enter practice in these communities, but rather to orient them to the concepts and methods of extended health care through the utilization of new primary health care practices.

Office of Community Medical Affairs

Mr. Bill North
Director

The College of Medicine has received a contract with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for a project to be conducted jointly with the Arkansas Department of Health to provide assistance to rural communities which are medically underserved and are seeking to recruit physicians.

Titled, "Consultation and Assistance for Medically Underserved Rural Areas", the project will have a staff of four field representatives who will provide direct assistance to communities in such areas as evaluating the community's health manpower and assistance in the placement of appropriate health manpower resources.

The staff of this project will have available a wealth of definitive information concerning a large number of Arkansas communities, and housestaff interested in practice opportunities in Arkansas are invited to contact Bill North, Director, Office of Community Medical Affairs at (501) 661-5620.

Additional activities of the Office of Community Medical Affairs include:

1. "Another Arkansas Practice Opportunity" exhibit. This is a permanent display in our University Hospital which gives pertinent information regarding communities throughout the state that are attempting to recruit physicians. We feature a new community approximately every three weeks.
2. "The Physicians' Opportunity Fair." This is an annual event in which we invite communities who are seeking to recruit physicians to come to our campus for one day in order to afford them an opportunity to meet with medical students and residents. We provide each community with a booth in which they may display materials which tell about their community and that community's need for physicians.
3. "Arkansas Practice Opportunities Familiarization Program." This project attempts to present to junior and senior medical students information concerning the state of Arkansas, to involve the students in a successful physician retention program, to involve the communities in a program of recruiting and retention and to arrange for meetings between medical students and communities seeking to recruit physicians. Four times during each academic year we take a limited number of junior and senior medical students and their spouses on a weekend bus trip (8 a.m. Saturday to 5 p.m. Sunday) to visit four communities in the state in order to accomplish the purposes outlined above. We began this program in October, 1976, so we are now in our third year. There is no cost to student or spouse — no commitment on the part of the student — great food and entertainment.

James L. Dennis, M.D.

Chancellor of The University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences

On March 15, 1979, an era will come to an end at UAMS with the retirement of Dr. James L. Dennis as Chancellor.

Since his arrival at UAMS in 1970 as Vice President for Health Sciences, Dr. Dennis has provided outstanding leadership and foresight in the development of this campus. With his concept of a "Medical Center Without Walls", development of the Area Health Education Centers, expansion of student enrollment, and increases in Family Practice training and practice opportunities, he has led UAMSC in the effort to provide training for health professionals to meet the health care needs of the people of Arkansas.

With the reorganization of the U. of A. Medical Center into the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences in 1975, and completion of the Education Building II in 1978, Chancellor Dennis has helped produce dramatic changes in the inner workings and outward appearance of the campus . . . all for the better. The latest fruits of his many efforts include remodeling of the University Hospital and completion of the new Ambulatory Teaching Center.

Dr. Dennis, an outstanding leader, accomplished organist, and superb clinician, will be missed by all those at UAMSC that have had the privilege of knowing him, and especially by those of us who have benefited from his efforts to raise the quality of medical education in the state of Arkansas to a level equaled by only a handful, and surpassed by none.

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair, we had everything before us, we had nothing before us, we were all going direct to Heaven, we were all going direct the other way" — it was our Junior year.

HAMBURG

Needs a Primary

Care Physician

The Hamburg Clinic is designed for two physicians and presently has only one. Hamburg, pop. 3102, is the county seat of Ashley County and serves a trade area of 12,000 in southeast Arkansas. We have excellent churches, fully accredited schools, superb recreational facilities, and a growing industrial community. An excellent opportunity for the establishment of a general practice exists in our friendly community. Come and see us for yourself. We want to be your neighbors. For details, please contact:

Union is the MedCenter's only 24-hour bank

Union National's Med Center Branch is a quick walk from anywhere on the campus. And it's the only 24-hour automated teller nearby.

At Union's 7/24, you can get cash, make deposits or transfer money from one account to the other. And only at a Union 7/24 can you pay utility bills and many leading merchants. So save postage costs and bank anytime—only at Union's Med Center branch.

All it takes is a checking account at Union National Bank.

POCAHONTAS

Randolph County Memorial Hospital

Population 5,800. Trade area population approximately 25,000.

An opportunity exists in Pocahontas for a general surgeon, family physicians, and most primary care physicians. Office space is available either for solo practice or possible partnership.

It has a 33-bed general hospital and a skilled-care nursing home.

Pocahontas is located 40 miles from Jonesboro, which has a population of 35,000. Many rivers and lakes are easily accessible for recreation.

This growing city of Pocahontas offers many opportunities for a rewarding practice in an ideal semi-rural community.

When you hang out your shingle

Don't let a poor communications system hang up your practice!

Doctors depend on fast, reliable communications.

Southwestern Bell offers a wide range of business communications systems that can help get your practice off to a smooth start. And these systems can be expanded, new features added as your communications needs grow.

Our account executives specialize in communications for the medical field. They don't sell hardware . . . they offer solutions to communications problems of doctors and hospitals.

Whether you're starting your practice or expanding an existing one, we have the prescription for the right communications system to do the job for you. Talk to your Southwestern Bell account executive.

We talk business. Your business.

QUIZ:

Q: 2+2= A: ___

Q: Third Party Reimbursement +
Aged Insurance Claims +
Monthly Billing = A: ___

More Physicians Everyday are Realizing the Acute Problems that Exist as a Result of this Question.

- How does a physician efficiently handle third party reimbursement?
- What is the most effective way to track and collect from Medicaid, Blue Cross, etc.?
- As the number of patients increase, what is the best method of determining outstanding debts?
- And all of this within an expedient budget of time and money?

The Information Data Service of Hospital Resources Management was designed specifically to assist Physicians solve these problems.

HRM's Information Data Service will effectively:

1. Guarantee that bills and third party reimbursement be in the mail the next day,
2. Track outstanding debts,
3. Provide information regarding insurance receivables,
4. Individually inventory all patients, services performed and gross income per service,
5. Increase cash flow; and,
6. Provide more time for the Physician and his staff to practice medicine.

&

Offers you an excellent professional opportunity.

Yell County Hospital, located at Danville, is a 57 bed general hospital offering equipment and services unexcelled by any small hospital in Arkansas.

Danville is equal distance from Fort Smith and Little Rock. Fort Smith, being seventy-five miles to the Northwest and Little Rock eighty miles to the East. Sixty miles South lies beautiful Hot Springs.

Four of Arkansas' most beautiful and popular lakes lie within thirty miles of Danville. Majestic Mtn. Magazine, Mtn. Petit Jean and Mtn. Nebo may be seen in the distance, along with many other less well known mountains.

Danville is a serene, but progressive community that offers unique opportunity.

IF YOU ARE SEARCHING FOR THAT SOMETHING "SPECIAL", BE OUR GUEST FOR A DAY AT YELL COUNTY HOSPITAL AND LET US SHOW YOU BOTH OPPORTUNITY & BEAUTY

HELP HOPE!

Hope, an outstanding community of 20,000 in Southwest Arkansas, has only nine physicians. Of these, four are 65 or older and ready to retire. This means that the present doctor/patient ratio of 1:2220 will soon be even more lopsided.

Hempstead County Memorial Hospital is an eighty bed, short-term general hospital. We are now renovating the original building, and adding a new wing, (20,000 sq. ft.), which will include sixteen private rooms, a six-bed intensive care unit, and an obstetrical suite. Key hospital employees include fifteen Registered Nurses, two Registered Certified Respiratory Therapists, two Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists, five Medical Technologists, one Registered Physical Therapist, two Registered X-Ray Technologists, and a full-time Pharmacist. Equipment or services include a two-bed intensive care unit, a two-bed pediatric department with Ohio Pediatric Aerosol Tent, Dupont ACA with a capacity of sixty-two tests, Arterial Blood Gas Machine, Electrophoresis Machine, and two X-Ray machines with image intensifier and tomographic attachments.

If you want to help us, get in touch with Carlton R. Morris, Administrator, Hempstead County Memorial Hospital, 1900 S. Main, Hope, AR, 71801, or call (501) 777-5766.

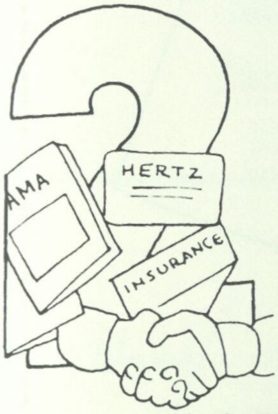
3 GOOD, SOUND REASONS TO JOIN THE AMA

Effective Representation

There may have been times when you've encountered problems with your institution, or you've wanted to see changes or improvements in your curriculum, or in patient care, or in health care delivery. But where could you go for help with your problem or to get a hearing for your ideas? There really wasn't any place.

But now there is: For students, its the AMA Student Business Section (SBS); for residents, the AMA Resident Physician Section (RPS). They are your representative assemblies through which the AMA and its resources are directed to the problems you and your colleagues wish to have addressed. Through the SBS and RPS delegates in the AMA House of Delegates, students and residents have direct input and participation in AMA policy-making.



Membership Benefits

Your membership provides a broad range of professional as well as personal benefits. Those of particular importance are:

- JAMA, American Medical News, and one of nine specialty journals
- Low-cost insurance program—group life, excess major medical, disability, accidental death and dismemberment, and supplement in-hospital insurance
- AMA Physicians' Placement Service
- Starting your practice workshops, negotiations seminars

Special Dues

Recognizing the financial burdens you already carry, the AMA established special reduced membership dues. Students may join for only $15, residents for $35. (Reguular AMA dues are $250.) Join today. The AMA needs and wants your membership, input, and participation.

CONSIDER EL DORADO — There is a real need in South Arkansas for additional physicians. Our medical community covers nearly every specialty area. Although Warner Brown Hospital is housed in a new, well-equipped 181 bed facility, we have been serving this community of 26,000 since 1919. We conservatively estimate the population of our drawing area to be 80,000. The number of admissions for FYE June 30, 1977 was 5, 830 and the number of patient days was 44, 810.

It's hard to believe that after the countless hours, this volume is finally complete. From the outset, we have strived to create a book that gives you the reader, a pleasant glimpse of the moments, the faces, and the memories that have made up the past year at UAMSC. Hopefully, we have succeeded.

To thank everyone who made this yearbook happen would be impossible, but several people deserve special thanks: to the hard working Caduceus staff for their unselfish labors; to Mrs. Suzanne Mathews for her constant help and support; to the talented and crazy people in Biomedical Photography for their special efforts; to our publishers representative, Mr. Tom Walker; and to my wife, for her support and encouragement during this endeavor. And to all the rest of the people that helped in their own ways . . . thanks.

Ed.
